KNOTS

A knot is a method of forming a knob, fixed loop or noose by turning a rope on itself through a loop. Can be any fastening formed with cordage, including hitches and bends.

OVERHAND
(STOPPER KNOT)

Simplest and smallest of knots, forms part of many other knots. Used as temporary stopper also to prevent fraying ends of small cord and twine. Hard to untie.

FIGURE EIGHT
(STOPPER KNOT)

Best stopper knot (to prevent rope from running through hole or pulley). Larger and stronger than overhand knot and easier to untie. Does not jam.

MILLERS
(BINDING KNOT)

Also called bag knot. Used by farmers to close the mouth of a bag or sack of grain or flour.

SQUARE
(BINDING KNOT)

Also called reef knot. Sailors use it for reefing or furling sails. The old reliable for tying packages or bundles. With both ends slipped, it is the common bow knot.

HITCHES

A hitch is generally a speedy, temporary method of securing a rope to some other object—a hook, ring, post or spar. Most untie easily or come untied when object is removed.

HALF HITCH

A basic knot form, first step of more complicated hitches. Generally used to fasten rope to post or other object for a right angle pull.

TWO HALF HITCHES

Simply a half hitch tied twice. Quick and reliable for temporary fastening. Commonly used for mooring, also used by fishermen for tying line to ring of hook.

CLOVE HITCH

Also called builder's hitch. Used for fastening rope to post, stake, spar, or small rope to larger one. Quick and easy to tie—not apt to slip while strain is applied.

COW HITCH

Also called lark's head. Good when pull comes on both parts—used for tethering animal to stake; hoisting and mooring.

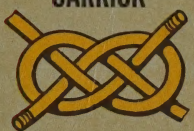
BENDS

A bend is a method of joining two ropes, preferably of the same size and type, usually for temporary use. Ropes should be spliced together for permanent use.

SHEET

Also called beckett bend and weaver's knot. Used to join light and medium ropes or ropes of the same size; unties easily. Used in weaving and making nets.

CARRICK

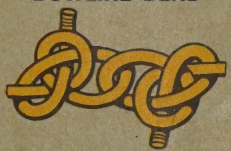


Used to join two heavy ropes or hawsers. Is very strong and secure; always draws itself up properly; does not jam even if ropes are wet; unties easily.

STRAP KNOT

For joining flat material like leather. Holds very well. When tied in rope it is called whatknot and slips out very easily unless ends are adjusted.

BOWLINE BEND



Simply two interlocking bowlines. Strong, safe way to join two ropes or hawsers. Somewhat bulky but completely reliable—will not slip.

CARE OF ROPE

BASIC SUGGESTIONS ON THE PROPER CARE OF ROPE FOR LONGER WEAR:
1. Don't drag rope. 2. Don't leave on ground or cement floor. 3. Keep rope clean. 4. Avoid kinks, sudden jerks and strains. 5. Don't overload. 6. Always whip ends to prevent unravelling. 7. Store in dry, cool place. 8. Check for internal wear, often. 9. Slack off wet lines. 10. Secure only to round smooth objects. 11. Always coil after use. 12. Check whole length, periodically. 13. Don't store wet rope. 14. Reverse to distribute wear. 15. Avoid acids—rust. 16. Where chafing may occur, wrap with canvas.

Note: Ropes of nylon, polyester fiber, polyethylene can be stored wet due to their rot, mildew resistance.

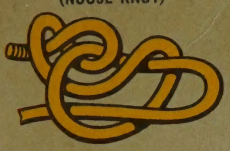
HALTER
(NOOSE KNOT)



For tying rope to post or ring. Draws up tight when pulled. Never put this around an animal's neck.

SLIP
(NOOSE KNOT)

Also called the running knot. The simplest of the temporary noose knots. Will take moderate strain. Tie overhand knot in end to make more secure.

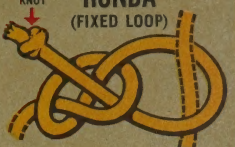
RUNNING BOWLINE
(NOOSE KNOT)

Best noose or slip knot for sailors. Used to retrieve gear overboard, also good knot for tightening twine at start of tying up package.

HONDA
(FIXED LOOP)



Used for making lariats. When knot is completed, pull standing end through loop to form noose. Crown knot keeps end from slipping through honda knot.

TIMBER HITCH

BLACKWALL HITCH

Quick, easy way to fasten rope to hook, if end of rope is short. Will take moderate load but never completely reliable—holds only as long as tension is maintained.

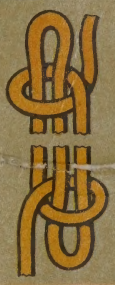
PIPE HITCH

Also called lifting hitch. Used to pull well pipe, also to secure rope to spar, log or similar object so that it will take strain parallel to object without slipping.

ANCHOR (BEND)

Also called fisherman's bend. Is strong and secure; will not slip, chafe or jam; holds well on ring, spar or post. Unties easily, even after strain.

SHEEPSHANK



A way of quickly shortening a rope for temporary use—such as for an auto tow-rope, or hay tackle fall. Fairly dependable so long as steady pull is maintained.

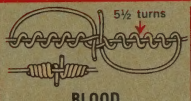
FISHERMAN'S KNOTS FOR USE WITH MONOFILAMENT

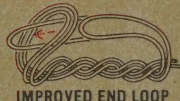
TURLE
For tying dry or wet fly to monofilament.

DOUBLE EYE
Ideal for tying hook to monofilament.



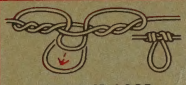
BLOOD
For joining two lengths of monofilament.

PERFECTION LOOP
For tying an end loop on monofilament.



IMPROVED END LOOP
For joining leader to line or to swivel.

LARK'S HEAD
For tying swivel or hook to monofilament.



DROPPER LOOP
For tying more than one fly to leader.

TUCKED SHEET BEND
For smooth joining of line to monofilament.

CLINCH
For tying fly or bait hook to monofilament.

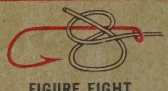


FIGURE EIGHT
For joining leader to hook or to line.

ROPE FIBERS

Fiber rope is produced by a series of twisting operations (see diagram), each in an opposite direction. The twists offset each other and the method holds rope together. The following are the chief fibers used:

MANILA—from the fibers of abacá plant, grown chiefly in Philippines. Most widely used fiber rope. Recommended where strength and durability are first considerations.

SISAL—from fibers of henequin plant, mainly from Mexico. Less expensive than and about 75% as strong as manila. Excellent for uses where high-quality manila is not necessary.

HEMP—from fibers of hemp plant, grown in America, Italy, Russia and other countries. Usually tarred, has long life.

JUTE—from fibers of jute plant, India the chief source. Also used for soft twine.

COTTON—from fibers of cotton plant. Clean, white and decorative.

LINEN—from fibers of flax plant. Smooth, flexible and strong.

SYNTHETIC—manufactured fibers. Nylon, strongest fiber rope—durable; elastic; resistant to rot, mildew; polyester fiber, almost as strong—low stretch; resistant to rot, mildew, acid; polyethylene, buoyant—ideal for water ski tow ropes.
